GENERAL FEEDING GUIDELINES

- Always observe your pet's eating habits. Changes in eating habits may indicate that they are not feeling well or may have dental problems.
- Provide clean, fresh water at all times.
- Label feeding directions are intended only as guidelines. Adjust the amount of feed offered to maintain normal body weight and condition.
- Do not overfeed or allow your pet to become overweight or obese. You should be able to easily feel the ribs, but not see them in most short-haired dogs and cats. Use similar criteria for long-haired breeds.
- Most dogs are binge eaters and need to be meal-fed in limited quantities to maintain normal body weight. Most dogs will overeat if allowed unlimited access to food.
- Do not allow large breed pups to become overweight as this increases the likelihood of adult skeletal problems. Lower fat formulas (above) are recommended.
- Some small breed breeding females may be more sensitive to calcium and phosphorus levels than medium and large breed females. Proud Paws Ultra-Select dog food is recommended for small breed breeding females (less than 25 lb body weight).
- Cats are meal-eaters and should have access to food several times daily. Limit amounts at each feeding as needed to maintain normal body weight.
- Regular veterinary checks are recommended for your pet.
